Italians In America.

On the authority of the census of 1900 there were then in the United States 1,217,124 persons born in Italy or of Italian parentage. The Italian Chamber of Commerce of New York city took a census for itself in 1904 and found that the Italians in New York state numbered 486,176. According to George C. Speranza there was in New York city savings banks at that time $15,000,000 of the saved money of Italian immigrants, and 4,000 of them owned real setate worth $20,000,000. There were 10,000 stores kept by Italians worth $7,000,000 more, and a wholesale business in their hands worth $7,500,000. The property of the Italian colony in New York city he calculated at $60,000,000, and according to a newspaper report before me this is much below the valuation of their holdings in St. Louis, San Francisco, Chicago and Boston, I know, as all know, says Baron Mayor des Planches in Appleton's Magazine, that the only criminality of the Italian is the crime of quick anger, unpremeditated and open, which is inherent in the blood and breed, but which is never committed except under strong provocation. This is not written to prove the Italians a nation of model men. Our one fault is our own; we are sons of Adam like the rest, but our weakness is not of the crawling, skulking, or conspiring kind. Bad it is and deplorable it is, but we hope to overcome it and to live it down.

Statistics from the great educational institutions of the country are significant as indicating the extent to which America is enlightening the world in this way. There is hardly a university or college which does not other countries, and in several instances the number of foreigners is notable, says Troy Times. Columbia, heart, for instance, reports that it has 150 men representing 30 countries other than the United States. Canada contributes 31, while Japan is a good second, with 24. China, Persia, far-off New Zealand and other remote districts figure in the exhibit, which also from her bloody wrists. includes young men from every one of the leading countries of Europe, the West Indies and Central and South America. And there are other institutions with similar showing. American education is leavening the world's intelligence.

There used to be told a comical good. The tale went on to tell that on dissipated to an extent regarded by the judge as scandalous, the offender ist imposed an exemplary fine upon himself. There seems to have been a similar working of conscience down in Mississippi, where a grand jury indicted every one of its own members for violating the Sunday law, with the result that the culprits were arraigned in court and were fined $10 apiece. proof of sincerity when it "gave up"

Honey bees are generally credited with instinctive skill in making the cells of the comb hexagonal in shape, but it is probable that this construction is merely the ordinary result of mechanical laws. Rheumatism is a painful inflammaion of the muscles or of the coverings of the joints and is sometimes accompanied by swelling.
